

Abstract

The invention relates to a method for inputting user commands into an electronic device (1), which uses dynamic I/O input arrangement. After each input command the most potential next input command is emphasized by enlarging the size of a key of the command (23, 24, and 25). The invention also relates to a cellular terminal or PDA utilizing the method and software means to carry out the invention.

Fig. 2